The JOURNAL OF INSURANCE MEDICINE (JIM) is an educational publication of the American Academy of Insurance Medicine (AAIM). Its pages are open to the widest range of responsible scholarly opinions, research, and practice relevant to insurance medicine. Instructions to Authors (published on page 158, or write the Journal for a copy) outlines requirements for acceptance of manuscripts.

Letters to the editor will be printed, irrespective of the opinions expressed, subject to their relevance to insurance medicine and suitable decorum. The opinions expressed in letters, editorials, articles, and columns of JIM are those of the authors, not to be interpreted as representing the position of AAIM or JIM, except where so stated.

Subscriptions: The subscription rate is included in the annual dues of members of AAIM. The one-year subscription rate for non-members in USA and Canada is $45 US per year (individual copies $12 each); for non-members outside North America the one-year subscription rate is $55 US per year (individual copies $15 each). The two-year subscription rate is $80 US in the USA and Canada, and $100 outside North America.
