

Lincoln National Corporation (NYSE: LNC), a Fortune 500 company, is seeking a Chief Medical Director for their Group Disability Division. Lincoln National Corporation is a nationally recognized, full-service financial services organization. With over $220 billion in invested assets, LNC is recognized as a leader in Group Life and Group Disability products.

The Chief Medical Director will provide strategic leadership to the clinical and vocational professionals, who will support their high-growth group insurance operation. The CMD will be responsible for developing quality and training programs supporting the internal clinical team, and educating claims personnel. Responsibilities will also include developing return to work plans for key employers and forming partnerships with EAP and Worker's Compensation carriers who support Lincoln's customers. This position will develop best practices for the clinical and vocational support offered to claimants and employer customers. The CMD will have opportunities to perform research and publish articles related to the management of disabilities prevention.

Candidates for this position should have a minimum of 3-5 years of experience with a Disability or Worker's Compensation insurance carrier, and have familiarity with disability causation, prevention and treatment programs. Also required is a history of providing leadership to clinical teams.

Interested Candidates should submit curriculum vitas to Greg Flowers gflowers@mercermorgan.com.